ONE DOLLAR RELEASED PUTS OTHERS IN CIRCULATION.

When one dollar is put into circulation it liberates from five to 25 other dollars, business men have told us. Thus, when we pay our dollar to the baker, he pays it to an employee; the employee pays it to his landlord; the landlord pays his city taxes; the city pays it to a school teacher, who pays it to a merchant, and the chain goes on until some one withdraws the dollar from circulation.
Had the first person not paid the baker, all the following debts might not have been discharged.

Such an illustration does not indicate that people should not save money—it does show that people should place their money where it will remain in circulation, and not isolated. Money in banks, in good stocks or bonds, does the possessor, the community, and the country far more good than lying idle, either in a vault or in "frozen" investments.

Officials of the Henderson (North Carolina) County Protective League recently demonstrated how a check for $7.75 had paid debts totaling $124.

The check was returned to the bank with 16 indorsements. The league proceeded to trace the check and found that each indorser had turned it over to a debtor, who, in turn, had done the same.

The league pointed to the check as an instance of how a single debt payment can affect the financial situation to a far wider extent than the size of the initial payment might indicate.

If all of us were in a position to pay our debts every month, and did so, we, our creditors, and the community as a whole would be benefited greatly. That is impossible for many of us, at least;
but the greater the percentage of debts paid each week or month,
the better it is for all concerned.—The Dalton (Georgia) News.

MRS. IRMA HEARNE THOMPSON.

Mrs. Irma Hearne Thompson died
at this place Monday, March 24, 1930. Her remains were buried in Oakwood cemetery the following day.
Rev. M. Williamson, pastor of the local Methodist church of which organization deceased was a member,
conducted the funeral services.

Mrs. Thompson was the youngest daughter of Mr. E. P. Hearne and was born November 10, 1898. She grew to young womanhood on her father's farm near this place, and on May 26, 1929, was married to Dan Thompson, who survives her. She is also survived by her aged father and three sisters, Mrs. Sid Carter of Hondo, Mrs. Dolle Beal of San Antonio and Mrs. Lacy McCall of College Station.

This paper joins in sympathy for those who mourn, and especially the father to whom she had been especially dear.

COMMUNITY LOYALTY THAT COUNTS.

A Hondo business man this week turned down the solicitor for a big Dallas printshop and turned two big jobs of commercial printing over to the Anvil Herald print shop without compelling us to underbid the foreign concern.

This is loyalty to home enterprise
that is more than lip service—it speaks in terms of cash money, the thing that builds home business enterprises, puts nickles in the contribution basket, swells bank accounts, fills the seats in local theaters, pays school taxes, makes the street lights shine at night; in short, makes a prosperous, busy community instead of a desert place.

Because we were not compelled to underbid a cut-throat concern or lose the chance to do the work, we can make on our merchandise of print paper and printer's service the same and of a legitimate profit our customer makes on his own goods. Because we want to retain his goodwill and patronage, we will strive to please him in quality, workmanship and price, and can do it without the temptation to skimp any where because of having taken the job too low to give honest service without losing on it.

If all the printing that goes out of Hondo—taking the money out of town and helping to stimulate trade and swell bank deposits in other towns—was turned over to this office on the same terms, we could employ another printer—to become a citizen among us, spending his wages among local tradesmen—and we could enlarge our plant and improve our facilities for giving the town an improved printing service—and as economically as any but a cut-throat concern can do it.

When disposed to think about community loyalty let us commend this example of the kind that counts in a material way.

ALVIN HEYEN DIES.

LOCKHART, Tex., March 24.— Sergeant Allen Heyen, who died in the Lockhart Sanitarium early Saturday morning after an illness of only a few days, was buried with full military honors in the Lockhart cemetery

The deceased was 24 years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H.
Heyen and was a member of Company B of the 141st Infantry National Guard. The entire company acted as escort of the body to the cemetery and a firing squad of 10 men fired the salute and were under command of Lieut. Schawe.

Besides his parents, deceased is also survived by three sisters, Miss Elsie Heyen, Mrs. Bessie Smith and Miss Mildred Heyen.

Those from here who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. John Schweers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H.
Schweers, Mr. and Mrs. August Saat-hoff, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stiegler,

vin and Bruno Schweers and sister,

TEXAS AND TEXANS

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

By Will H. Mayer.
"All Texans for All Texas"

Texas Road Program

Texas has a road building program
for 1930 that will cost $58,000,000,
the expenditure being made possible
by the co-operation of the Federal Government. Of this amount $41,- 500,000 will be spent on State highway construction and $17,000,000 on local roads and bridges. It is estimated that 1,650 miles of Texas
roads will be improved.

Road building in Texas appears to be going along pretty satisfactorily,
and the money being spent for road work is almost sufficient in itself to prevent any serious unemployment situation.

But in the matter of building roads, as in most other phases of modern life, those who help themselves are those that get helped. The section that waits for roads to be built for it, without doing anything to speed the building, will not likely get much help in 1930 or at any other time.

Texas Life Insurance Loans

Life insurance has become largely an essential of modern living. The benefits are not only to those insured, but are extended to many others.
Texas life insurance companies in January loaned $1,168,258 in the State, some of it to policy holders on their policies, but a large part on real estate and other securities. The growth of Texas life insurance companies within the last decade or two illustrates well the trite adage,
"What Texas builds, builds Texas."

Texas Harbor Projects

At least three Texas harbors seem assured improvement within the year
under the rivers and harbors bill now pending in Congress. These are the Aransas Pass-Corpus Christi harbor,
in which $515,000 will be spent; Galveston, $700,000; Houston ship channel, $753,600.

Tomato Acreage Increased

From all reports the Texas tomato acreage will be largely increased this year perhaps doubled. DeWitt county growers plan planting 1,500 acres; San Marcos growers are doubling the acreage. A number of sections that have been growing only for the local markets will play for carload shipments. East Texas will doubtless have a larger acreage than usual.
Several tomato centers are establishing canneries to handle the surplus crop.

Point Isabel Causeway

It is announced that finances have been assured for construction of a $1,000,000 causeway from Point Isabel to Padre Island, and that the company that will build it also has plans for a $1,000,000 resort hotel
on Padre Island. Although Point Isabel is at the southernmost tip of Texas, this huge enterprise will benefit the entire State.

Texas Gauze Mills

The construction of a mill at Marble Falls for the manufacture of medicated gauze for surgical dressings, which is to be in operation by June 15, is the beginning of many large industrial enterprises that are sure to follow the building of the Colorado river power and irrigation dams. A company at New Braunfels has been successfully manufacturing and marketing medicated gauze for the last two or three years, and the Marble Falls enterprise will not be an industrial experiment.

Farmer's Luncheon Club

When some 20 farmers met at Killeen recently and formed a luncheon club they started a movement that is likely to reach large proportions. The club will meet every two weeks at lunch and discuss matters in which farmers of the community are most interested. While they will doubtless invite Killeen business men to meet and talk matters over with them from time to time, it will be

SHOT-GUN INJURES BOY.

Charles Schmidt, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Schmidt of Biry, while out hunting Monday evening
about a half mile from home, accidentally discharged a 410 shot-gun, the charge entering his right foot between the first and second toes. He was brought to local hospital by Dr.
Meyer, who administered first aid and serum. Fortunately no bones were broken, the injury proving to be only a flesh wound. After a short rest at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Geo. Schmidt, Master Charles was able to return to his home at Biry Tuesday.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this means to thank our friends for the beautiful floral offerings and for the kind expressions of sympathy in the loss of our beloved daughter and sister.

E. P. HEARNE,
and Family.

FARMING is only $1.00 a year.

distinctly a farmers club. The Killeen Herald offers a suggestion worth passing along to other communities
when it says: "Why not farmers ment in some form of luncheon and service club as well as men in other walks of life?"

Benefits of Co-operation

Farmers need, as much as any others, to co-operate, and no doubt the Killeen farmers will talk cooperation at their luncheon meetings. At Crystal City, spinach had fallen to 35 cents a basket, with every prospect that it would go lower and with the bulk of the crop not harvested. The growers got together and fixed definite marketing rules.
The price was advanced almost immediately until 65 and 75 cents a basket was realized. "In union there is strength."

Guadalupe River Survey

The Federal Government is making a survey of the Guadalupe river from its mouth to Cuero. At one time the river was navigated as far as Victoria. While the engineer in charge of the survey says it is for the purpose of ascertaining if there is a four foot river navigation depth, Cuero citizens are hopeful that the project may establish the feasibility of a nine foot canalization of the river, thus fixing possibilities for a combination of practical uses.

Demonstrating Farm Success

J. P. Jameson, living near Dilley, is making a practical demonstration of diversified farming. He maintains a flock of about 1,000 hens, from which he has sold more than 11,000 dozen eggs during the last year at an average of 34.8 cents a dozen.
Except for a moderate amount of commercial mash, he raised hedges and milo maize for grain feed, also feeding them skim milk from several good milk cows which furnished milk and butter for family use and some to sell. He raised 19 head of hogs and operated his own chicken hatchery. It is easy to understand that he is not complaining of the hard luck
of farming.

Town and County Unite

At a recent meeting of the Floresville Chamber of Commerce approximately 300 were in attendance, about half of the number being farmers who have joined the organization. A tamale supper preceded several short talks from business men and farmers.
It is safe to say that if these meetings, which are to be held monthly, are kept up, the entire county will profit by them. Such gatherings strengthen the trade and the good feeling between town and county.

Miniature Golf Links

Miniature golf is the latest fad.
Town block imitations of the real thing are to be seen in many places, and a number of hotels are establishing them for their guests. While an entire block is better, even smaller plots may be used. Stone, cement, wooden obstacles and sand piles are used. While the main rules of golf are followed, the miniature golf course presents more the appearance of cluttered croquet grounds. The game is far less exhausting and much more economical than that of the large golf courses. Every Texas town worth while will soon have its miniature golf courses.

Wisconsin Methods

The Wisconsin Real Estate Board
thought to stop Wisconsin farmers from coming to Texas by prohibiting certain realtors from operating in that State in the sale of Texas lands.
The secretary of the board came to Texas with a train load of prospectors. He saw Texas, was convinced, bought 10 acres of Rio Grande Valley land, returned to Wisconsin, and was fired from his job for buying land in Texas. He will be welcomed back to Texas, and it is highly probable that many others will come with him. Even Wisconsin folks know a good thing when they get a chance to see it. That Wisconsin board threw a mighty boomerang.

TRUSTEE ELECTION.

An election will be held Saturday, March 5, 1930, for the purpose of electing three trustees for the Hondo Independent School District,
succeeding J. R. Chancey, W. G.
Muennink and C. J. Monkhouse (appointee), whose terms have expired.
The election will be held at the Court House, and all qualified voters who have resided in the district six months may vote.

J. G. BARRY,
Superintendent.

CARD OF THANKS.

I take this means of thanking all my friends for the many expressions of sympathy and for their many acts of kindness to me in my recent bereavement. I wish especially to express my appreciation of the beautiful flowers and to thank Bro. Albert Nelson for the comforting service at the funeral of my dear husband, W.
B. SUMNER.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. W. B. SUMNER
and Children.

HONDO, TEXAS, MARCH 1, 1930.

There was never a more opportune time for diversified farming in America than the present.

What has become of the cheerful idiot who favored national prohibition because putting it in the constitution was going to take it out of politics?

If you like FARMING tell your friends about it; if you have any bricks to throw, pitch them this way. Do something and let us know you are alive.

The way many people gloat over the fall of an erring brother makes it all the harder to get away from the belief in the inherent depravity of the human race.

Now is the time to lay the foundation for a flock of purebred chickens of your favorite breed. A few baby chicks properly cared for will help you turn the trick.

Make use of the classified advertisements to supply your wants or to dispose of anything you may have for sale. It will cost you little and should pay you big.

Healthy seed is the first prerequisite of vigorous plants. Vigorous plants are the prerequisite to large and profitable yields. Look well to the selection of your seed.

Our advertisers are reliable and deserving of your patronage. Give them your trade and thus encourage them to patronize our advertising columns and help us give our readers an independent, outspoken paper.

It frequently happens some friend sends FARMING to a friend. If you are getting FARMING that way won't you be equally generous? Renew your own subscription and send us a friend's—all for the price of your own.

Ex-Governor Ferguson's expected announcement for Governor has materialized. Now if the politicians who are afraid to meet him in an open break fail to find another judicial high-jacker to slug him out of the race by trumped-up judicial procedure there will be some lively scrap in Texas this summer.

Has any representative of the government any legal warrant or moral right to advise the farmer to cut down his cotton acreage without the government pledging the farmer compensation for the normal production of the acres left untill? Even in times of war the government is estopped by the constitution from taking private property for public use without reasonable compensation. The usufruct of that property should be as sacred as the property itself.

The above picture was made of the Governor when he was just entering politics. He is not as smooth and good-looking now, but his friends like him just the same.

EX-GOVERNOR JAMES E. FERGUSON ANNOUNCES

To the people of Texas:
Responding to the petition and suggestion of a very large number of Texas voters I hereby announce for governor.

When Abraham Lincoln was elected president the second time, he said that he did not regard the election as an honor so much as he regarded it as the belief of the people that he could best serve the people in a position for which he had been severely trained.

In this campaign I will be seeking an office which I have already had. I will not be seeking an honor, for me and my family had that too. I will not be seeking vindication because that has been given me. When I am elected, as I am sure I will be, I will feel that the people have called me to render a public service which they have not received for the past three and one-half years, and for which my experience with state affairs has especially qualified me to perform. Every informed person knows that the next governor should be selected on the sole ground of qualification; he who can best serve the state will be the controlling question in the mind of the voter. At this perilous time this is as it should be. I would not have my friends feel that I am taxing their patience in again asking their support. If they feel that some other candidate can perform the duties of the office better than I, then I think it is their duty, to vote for that candidate. If on the other hand, they think that I will make a better governor than any of the other candidates then it is their duty to the state and not to me to vote for me. I want to emphasize, that whether anybody, friend or foe, votes for me or not it will cause no hard feelings on my part and our present cordial relations, I hope, will be continued.

I shall not enter into a frantic mental or physical struggle for election, and I shall conserve my strength for the performance of the duties of the office to which I will be called.

If there be those who may find satisfaction in personal abuse and vicious criticism of me or my record let them be at once advised that they will have the field all to themselves without murmur or protest from me. I have long since made my peace with God and I shall not now permit the heat of politics to engulf me in personal hatred.

My platform has been heretofore announced and the public is more or less familiar with it. Shortly stated this platform calls, "(1) For a business administration and the veto of any liquor legislation by pro or anti—something to eat and something to wear without a row over something to drink." "(2) The reduction of public offices notably the combination of the office of the assessor and collector and the limitation of fees to $6,000.00 a year." "(3) Preventing any bank from loaning over 10 per cent of its capital and deposits outside of Texas." "(4) The right of the borrower to redeem any home or other real estate within two years after foreclosure." "(5) The abolishment of the landlords lien, so that a tenant may mortgage his crop to his merchant for yearly supplies." "(6) For an elective highway commission of five, one at large and one from north, south, east and west Texas." "(7) Opposition to the issue of any state road bonds, and for a three cent gasoline tax, and the building and grading of less expensive roads which will give more roads to the farm and the mill." JAS. E. FERGUSON.

In times of uncertainty, when no man has any assurance that his money crop, no matter how abundantly it yields or how economically he produces it, will command such a price on the market as will afford him a profitable return, it behooves every farmer to produce enough of every thing to which his soil and climate is adapted to supply the need for that commodity on his farm. The farmer who has food provided for his family and feed for his live stock may not have much money but he will stand in less danger of being hurt from failure of the money crop. A calm consideration of this point and an intelligent adoption of this policy by all intelligent farmers will both promote a greater reduction in cotton acreage than all the preaching of the politicians of the Farm Board and bring more relief, personal to those who practice it and general to the whole body of cotton farmers, than has ever been dreamed of by the farm relievers.

Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Relief Board is quoted in the papers as saying on the 12th of February that the people of Texas are planting their front yards in cotton. If Mr. Legge is as ignorant of what his board is about as he seems to be about the cotton-planting season in Texas, it is a wonder he can find his way home from its sessions. Every day in every way the present humaballoo about the reduction in the cotton acreage looks like a studied effort to lay a predicate for blaming the farmers for the failure of the farm relief legislation to relieve. It is almost a foregone conclusion that the campaign for acreage reduction will have the opposite effect of increasing the acreage, as it has done too often in the past. Then the farmer will be told he can not expect relief because he did not follow the board's orders to reduce. Watch this prediction.

If Tom Love succeeds in forcing himself into the party primary this summer the party in Texas had as well go into the hands of a receiver. If such an apostate is to be permitted to offer himself as the party's standard bearer, every man in the party will feel himself justified in bolting his nomination or that of any other candidate who does not suit him. Without the power to make good on its pledges and deliver the support in the regular election of its rank and file, as promised in the primary, any party is hopelessly bankrupt.

Governor Ferguson says if elected governor he will taboo any liquor legislation in Texas during his administration. This is sound doctrine. Those who want prohibition laws won't be satisfied to have those who have repealed and those who want liquor bad enough won't obey them. So why muddle things up by any more legislation? Congress would have saved itself lots of useless worry had Hoover been equally honest in dealing with the problem in a national way.

Planting time is at hand. Since as one plants so shall he reap, if we plant a crop on land infected with plant diseases peculiar to that crop we can expect diseased plants and a "sickly" output. If we plant crops in soil infested with insect pests peculiar to the crop we can expect to feed a multitude of insects before we get anything for ourselves. The time to diversify is at planting time.

Governor Moody has inflicted a fifth called session of the 41st legislature on the state of Texas. If the legislature would adjourn and go home, thus ceasing to waste any more of the taxpayers' money, it would in a measure atone for its many sins of commission and omission.

HIGHWAYS OF THE SKY!

By Jessica M. Young.

"O, Good-bye to the earth, Good-bye! Hurrah for Highways of the sky."

The whistle blows, pedestrians try To catch the street cars, on the fly, As wild winds send their clothes awry,— Men just laugh,—the girls are not shy. "Who cares for knees," they also cry; "O, Hurrah for the high roads of the sky;— Some day we'll bid you all Good-bye!"

Listen, over the houses high, We hear a plane upon its way; Two maidens gaze up to the sky, And wish with them they were today. As they talk of their sweethearts gay, And with a smile for each they softly sigh, O, Good-bye, to the earth, Good-bye!

"Our nuptial day, up there we'll try. God bless the highroads of the sky! Prepare us for that happy day;— To some far planet we will hie, Together in a plane we'll fly;— Then to the earth Good-bye, Good-bye— And, Hurrah for the highroad of the sky!"

I WANT TO BE LOVED.

By R. L. Campbell.

I want to be loved for the man that I am, Not for what I have done, such love is a sham.

I want to be loved for the man that is me And not for the fame which I never may see. I try to be worthy and think it no sham. To ask to be loved for the man that I am.

I wish you to heed neither fortune nor skill, For should they come to me I'll be myself still; But if they should miss me I still want to be Loved by the people for the man that is me. I am friend to the friendly, just to the foe, And I want to be loved wherever I go.

I want to be loved and I guess that is all; I tell you sincerely with never a stall. I try to be patient, generous and true, And I give you my love because it is you; Then give me your love for the man that is me And not for the fame which I never may see.

TRINITY.

By Mrs. Elizabeth Giles Winn.

Tonight we caused a doubting heart to believe aright, As we changed dark shadows into light. It was not an easy task to do— Though I grieved inwardly, she never knew.

I gave my view of Christ on that rugged Cross, His inexpressible suffering, a convertible loss, Then His great victory over earth's pain, His heavenly flight with the Holy Father to reign.

Then, ah then, a girl and I knelt and prayed To that same Savior whom man once betrayed, While opportunely, as in mysterious ways, My radio joined in a hymn of praise.

Lovely world, to thus so provisionally move With the radio, God's instrument, in harmony and love To portray through a prayer and hymn the old story, A lone woman's faith—a radio—and His Glory!

DAFFODILS.

The fresh, sun-shiny Daffodils, With little ragged kinks and frills; Within each tiny golden cup A pure white star seems looking up; The purity is heart's desire. The golden cup, ambition's fire. When Daffodils in winter's snow Like sunshine threads through gardens grow They bring the news that Spring has come, And birds return to summer home.

LONGING.

By Fletcher Davis.

Oh, I am longing for the great outdoors, Where the sunshine in glorious splendor pours His warming rays o'er hills and valleys all, And Nature harkens to its wakening call!

Out far afield, where the bluebonnets grow, That's where my fettered spirit longs to go; Out where, amid the flowers in the dew, Each morn life is born gloriously anew!

There let me ramble to my heart's content, 'Til Peace shall find its own fair tenement In a Spirit made from all bondage free, And dwell henceforth with Nature and with me!

THE SONG OF THE PIONEERS.

By A. S. Draper.

There's a song of the pioneers That haunts me night and day; 'Tis the song of the passing years, And of the mesas far away.

Of the prairies wide, And the great divide, And of rivers broad and deep; Of mountains high, That kiss the sky, And winds that madly sweep.

'Tis the song of the pioneers, It haunts me night and day; 'Tis the song of the passing years, And of the mesas far away.

O! That song of the pioneers, Of plain and wilderness; 'Tis the song of the changing years, And of hardships, more or less,

And of perils great, And of wives who wait, While the brave men forge ahead; Of battles won For kin and home, And the fight for daily bread.

O! That song of the pioneers, Of plain and wilderness; 'Tis the song of the changing years, And of hardships, more or less.

Here's to the modern pioneers, Who have the faith to dare. God grant they learn, thru coming years The mysteries of the air.

The prairies wide, The great divide, Are things of the earth below; The mighty ship, With dart and dip, Far outflies the eagle now.

Because the sons of the pioneers Lacked not the faith to try The mystic trails of modern years, And the grandures of the sky.

A Novel of the Foothills

By ROBERT STEAD

Author of "The Cow Puncher" — "The Homesteaders" — "Neighbors," etc.

approaching. "Visitors, Transley," he was able to say before the rider pulled up at the open door of the covered wagon.

He was such a rider as may still be seen in those last depths of the ranching country where wheels have not entirely crowded Romance off of horseback. Spare and well-knit, his figure had a suggestion of slightness which the scales would have belied. His face, keen and clean-shaven, was brown as the August hills, and above it his broad hat sat in the careless dignity affected by the gentlemen of the plains. His leather coat afforded protection from the heat of day and from the cold of night.

"Good evening, men," he said, courteously. "Don't let me disturb your meal. Afterwards perhaps I can have a word with the boss."

"That's me," said Transley, rising. "No, don't get up," the stranger protested, but Transley insisted that he had finished, and, getting down from the wagon, led the way a little distance from the eager ears of its occupants.

"My name is Grant," said the stranger; "Dennison Grant. I am employed by Mr. Landson, who has a ranch down the valley. If I am not mistaken you are Mr. Transley."

"You are not mistaken," Transley replied.

"And I am perhaps further correct," continued Grant, "in surmising that you are here on behalf of the Y.D., and propose cutting hay in this valley?"

"Your grasp of the situation does you credit," Transley's manner was that of a man prepared to meet trouble somewhat more than half way.

"And I may further surmise," continued Grant, quite unflinching, "that Y.D. neglected to give you one or two points of information bearing upon the ownership of this land, which would doubtless have been of interest to you?"

"Suppose you dismount," said Transley. "I like to look a man in the face when I talk business to him."

"That's fair," returned Grant, swinging lightly from his horse. "I have a preference that way myself." He advanced to within arm's length of Transley and for a few moments the two men stood measuring each other. It was steel boring steel; there was not a flicker of an eyelid.

"We may as well get to business," Grant said Transley at length. "I also can do some surmising. I surmise that you were sent here by Landson to forbid me to cut hay in this valley. On what authority he acts I neither know nor care. I take my orders from Y.D. Y.D. said cut the hay. I am going to cut it."

"You are not?"

Transley's muscles could be seen to go tense beneath his shirt.

"Who will stop me?" he demanded. "You will be stopped."

"The mounted police?" There was contempt in his voice, but the contempt was not for the force. It was for the rancher who would appeal to the police to settle a "friendly" dispute.

"No, I don't think it will be necessary to call in the police," returned Grant, dropping back to his pleasant, casual manner. "You know Y.D., and doubtless you feel quite safe under his wing. But you don't know Landson. Neither do you know the facts of the case—the right and wrong of it. Under these handicaps you cannot reach a decision which is fair to yourself and to your men."

"Further argument is simply waste of time," Transley interrupted. "I have told you my instructions, and I have told you that I am going to carry them out. Have you had your supper?"

"Yes, thanks. All right, we won't argue any more. I'm not arguing now—I'm telling you. Y.D. has cut hay in this valley so long he thinks he owns it, and the other ranchers began to think he owned it. But Landson has been making a few inquiries. He finds that these are not public lands, but are privately owned by speculators in New York. He has contracted with the owners for the hay rights of these lands for five years, beginning with the present season. He is already cutting farther down the valley, and will be cutting here within a day or two."

"The trout ought to bite on a fine evening like this," said Transley. "I have an extra rod and some flies. Will you try a throw or two with me?"

"I would be glad to, but I must get back to camp. I hope you land a good string," and so saying Grant remounted, nodded to Transley and again to the men now scattered about the camp, and started his horse on an easylope down the valley.

"Well, what is it to be?" said Linder, coming up with the rest of the boys. "War?"

"War if they fight," Transley replied, unconcernedly. "Y.D. said cut the hay; 'spite of h—l an' high water,' he said. That goes."

Slowly the great orb of the sun sank until the crest of the mountains pierced its molten glory and sent it burnishing their rugged heights. In the east the plains were already wrapped in shadow. Up the valley crept the veil of night, hushing even the limitless quiet of the day. The stream babbled louder in the lowering gloom; the stamp and champing of horses grew less insistent, the cloudlets overhead faded from crimson to mauve to blue to gray.

Transley tapped the ashes from his pipe and went to bed.

CHAPTER III

"How about a ride over to the South Fork this afternoon, Zen?" said Y.D. to his daughter the following morning. "I just want to make sure them

"The Trout Ought to Bite on a Fine Evening Like This," Said Transley.

boys is hittin' the high spots. The grass is gettin' powerful dry an' you can never tell what may happen."

"You're on," the girl replied across the breakfast table. Her mother looked up sharply. She wondered if the prospect of another meeting with Transley had anything to do with Zen's alacrity.

"I had hoped you would outgrow your slang, Zen," she remonstrated gently. "Men like Mr. Transley are likely to judge your training by your speech."

"I should worry. Slang is to language what feathers are to a hat—they give it distinction, class. They lift it out of the drab commonplace."

"Still, I would not care to be dressed entirely in feathers," her mother thrust quietly.

"Good for you, Mother!" the girl exclaimed, throwing an arm about her neck and plinking a firm kiss on her forehead. "That was a solar plexus. Now I'll try to be good and wear a feather only here and there. But Mr. Transley has nothing to do with it."

"Of course not," said Y.D. "Still, Transley is a man with snap in him. That's why he's boss. So many of these ornery good-for-nothings is always wishin' they was boss, but they ain't willin' to pay the price. It costs somethin' to get to the head of the herd—an' stay there."

"He seems firm on all fours," the girl agreed. "How do we travel, and when?"

"Better take a democrat, I guess," her father said. "We can throw in a tent and some bedding for you, as we'll maybe stay over a couple of nights."

"The blue sky is tent enough for me," Zen protested, "and I can surely rustle a blanket or two around the camp. Besides, I'll want a riding horse to get around with there."

"You can run him beside the democrat," said her father. "You're gettin' too big to go campin' promiscuous like when you was a kid."

"That's the penalty for growing up," Zen sighed. "All right, Dad. Say two o'clock?"

The girl spent the morning helping her mother about the house, and casting over in her mind the probable developments of the near future. She would not have confessed outwardly to even a casual interest in Transley, but inwardly she admitted that the promise of another meeting with him gave zest to the prospect. Transley was interesting. At least he was out of the commonplace. His bold directness had rather fascinated her. He had a will. Her father had always admired men with a will, and Zen shared his admiration. Then there was Linder. The fierce light of Transley's charms did not blind her to the glow of quiet capability which she saw in Linder. If one were looking for a husband, Linder had much to recommend him. He was probably less capable than Transley, but he would be easier to manage. But who was looking for a husband? Not Zen. No, no, certainly not Zen.

Then there was George Drakz, whose devotions fluctuated between "that Pete horse" and the latest female to cross his orbit. At the thought of George Drakz Zen laughed outright. She had played with him. She had loved a monkey of him, and he devoted his time to her. It was not the first occasion upon which Zen had let herself drift with the tide, and always sure of justifying herself and discomfiting someone by the swift, strong strokes with which, at the right moment, she reached the shore. Zen liked to think of herself as careering through life in the same way as she rode the half-broken horses of her father's range. How many such a horse had thought that the lithe body on his back was something to race with, toy with, and, when tired of that, fling precipitately to earth! And not one of those horses but had found that while he might race and toy with his rider within limitations, at the last that light body was master, and not he.

Yet Zen loved best the horse that raced wildest and was hardest to bring into subjection. That was her philosophy of life so far as a girl of twenty may have a philosophy of life. It was to go on and see what would happen, supported always by a quiet confidence that in any pinch she could take care of herself. She had learned to ride and shoot, to sleep out and cook in the open, to ride the ranges after dark by instinct and the stars—she had learned these things while other girls of her age learned the rudiments of fancywork and the scales of the piano.

Her father and mother knew her disposition, loved it, and feared for it. They knew that there was never a rider so brave, so skillful, so strong, but some outlaw would throw him at last. So at fourteen they sent her east to a boarding school. In two months she was back with a letter of expulsion, and the boast of having blacked the eyes of the principal's daughter.

"They couldn't teach me any more, Mother," she said. "They admitted it. So here I am."

Y.D. was plainly perplexed. "It's about time you was halter-broke," he commented. "who's goin' to do it?"

"If a girl has learned to read and think, what more can the schools do for her?" she demanded.

And Y.D., never having been to school, could not answer.

The sun was capping the Rockies with molten gold when the rancher and his daughter swung down the foothill slopes to the camp on the South Y.D. Strings of men and horses returning from the upland meadows could be seen from the hillside as they descended.

Y.D.'s sharp eyes measured the scale of operations.

"They're hittin' the high spots," he said, approvingly. "That boy Transley is a hum-dinger."

Zen made no reply.

"I say he's a hum-dinger," her father repeated.

The girl looked up with a quick flush of surprise. Y.D. was no puzzle to her, and if he went out of his way to commend Transley he had a purpose.

"Mr. Transley seems to have made a hit with you, Dad," she remarked, evasively.

"Well, I do like to see a man who's got the goods in him. I like a man that can get there, just as I like a horse that can get there. I've often wondered, Zen, what kind you'd take up with, when it came to that, an' hoped he'd be a live crittur. After I'm dead an' buried I don't want no other dead one spendin' my simoleons."

"How about Mr. Linder," said Zen naively.

Her father looked up sharply. "Zen," he said, "you're not serious?"

Zen laughed. "I don't figure you're exactly serious, Dad, in your talk about Transley. You're just feeling out Well—let me do a little feeling out. How about Linder?"

"Linder's all right," Y.D. replied. "Better than the average, I admit. But he's not the man Transley is. If he was, he wouldn't be workin' for Transley. You can't keep a man down, Zen. If he's got the goods in him, Linder comes up over the average, so's you can notice it, but not like Transley does."

SECTIONS WHERE SAVINGS DECREASED

A regional analysis of the drop in the nation's savings deposits in banks, as recently reported by the American Bankers Association's Savings Bank Division in its annual compilation for 1929 showing the first recession in national savings in the twenty years during which it has published this data, reveals that all sections except the New England and the Pacific States groups recorded losses.

The published figures showed that on June 29, 1929, the total savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States stood at $28,217,656,000, which was $195,305,000 below the similar total for 1928, when there was an increase of $2,300,000,000.

The regional analysis by state groups discloses, however, that the six New England states as a group gained more than $88,800,000 in savings and 152,984 in savings depositors, while the seven Pacific states as a group gained over $79,000,000 in deposits and nearly 278,000 in number of depositors. The gains in these two sections, however, were smaller than the gains recorded there for 1928. The sections which showed losses are the Middle Atlantic States, Southern States, East Central States and the West Central States.

FINDS STATE BANKS WELL SUPERVISED

Bankers Body Sees Less Politics in Banking Departments With Better Facilities in the Hands of the Responsible Officials.

A survey of state banking departments by the State Bank Division, American Bankers Association, discloses a distinct tendency the past five years to take bank supervision out of politics, to increase the discretionary powers of bank commissioners, to lengthen their terms of office, to supply them with adequate forces of qualified examiners and to relieve banking departments of duties foreign to banking, says a recent statement issued by the association.

"We have consistently urged that the office of bank commissioner be as free from partisan politics as the judiciary itself and that it be divorced from all other functions of state government," the statement says. "Further, that his term of office be made more secure and lasting, with sufficient salary and power granted to attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability, courage, resourcefulness and successful banking experience."

"Five years ago the first survey of state banking departments by the division demonstrated the need for improvements. On the basis of data now in hand it is evident that, through the revision of statutes in many states, rapid steps are being taken in the right direction. One by one the states are coming to recognize the primary importance of strong, competent banking departments. The demand for increasing the effectiveness of banking departments is beginning to be met."

How Bank Commissioners Are Chosen

The office of bank commissioner is now operated as an independent department of state government in thirty-four states, the bankers find. In two states the bank commissioner is elected at general elections; in one he is appointed from eligible lists of the civil service and in another he is selected by the banks. In one state the bankers' association elects a list of five names from which the governor appoints one as superintendent of banks; in another he is appointed by the State Corporation Commission and in another by the State Banking Board.

"Terms of office of bank commissioners have been lengthened in several states during the last five years," the report says. "In 28 states the term is four years, in one, five years, and in three it is six years and in some the term is indefinite. A short term is condemned on the grounds that the commissioner has insufficient time to become thoroughly conversant with his field work. A longer term permits his rendering useful service through capitalizing his experience. Five years ago the average length of service was less than three years, while now it has risen to five years."

Higher Standards Required

"Signs of an awakening to the necessity of making successful banking experience a qualification for bank commissioner are evident. While eleven states report no banking experience necessary, the majority require experience of this sort, ranging from two to five years. Twelve states now have banking boards, with powers ranging from acting in an advisory capacity to full power over all state banks to issue and reject charters."

"A healthy sign is the number of reports which disclose that the commissioners have full power to appoint bank examiners or that these appointments are made from civil service lists. This power is now granted to the commissioner by twenty-seven states. Three require that selection be from civil service lists. Complaints are still made in a few states of political pressure in the appointment of examiners, but the contrary seems to be true in a growing number of states. The most capable commissioner cannot successfully perform his duties unless he is able to command the services of efficient, honest examiners. The safety of depositors is dependent on their work, and their appointment, fitness and compensation are highly important. The number of examiners has increased 25 per cent in the last five years."

BANKERS TO HOLD GREAT CONVENTION

Cleveland, Ohio, has been designated for the 1930 annual convention of the American Bankers Association. This organization, which numbers about 20,000 banks with $65,000,000,000 in assets, is annually the nation's most important, financial event. The attendance ranges between five and ten thousand.

Cleveland is especially significant in the history of the Association's educational traditions since it was in this city, when the organization last met there in the year 1899, that the original resolution was presented looking to the formation of an educational section. This subsequently resulted in the American Institute of Banking in which are now enrolled 35,000 bank men and women engaged in the study of the technical and scientific phases of the business.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

ESPECIALLY during the winter, vegetables are likely to arrive in the kitchen a long time after they have been picked. A little sugar added to the water while boiling will help to restore the natural sweetness they have lost.

An easy way to shell pecans is to pour boiling water over the nuts, and let them stand for about a half hour. Then, when the shells are cracked, the nut meats can be removed with no trouble at all.

Correct measurements are essential for successful cooking. Read recipes carefully. Remember that one cup of chopped nut meats, for instance, and one cup of nuts, chopped, are two different quantities. Just as are one cup of whipped cream, and one cup of cream, whipped.

Monkhouse & Starnes have been made the distributors here for the Universal Mills line of Red Chain Mixed Feeds. These feed are scientifically lended so as to afford the proper proportion of nutrients and are prepared in such a way as to be most readily assimilated by the animal. Further, they are prepared to specifically fit specific purposes—for instance, laying mash for the hens and growing mash for the chicks, and so on for all kinds of live stock. The company expects to have a message to our readers from time to time on how to feed most successfully by feeding Red Chain brands. The first one was a half-page item last week; watch for future announcements.

Dr. W. H. Smith, county health officer, reports the smallpox situation considerably improved and thinks with the advent of warmer weather, when houses will be aired out better, and people congregate more in the open air and less in buildings where the atmosphere is polluted, the disease will soon disappear entirely. The disease has been of a mild form and vaccination has proven a protection in numerous instances of exposure.

HONDO HAPPENINGS

Miss Josabell Knowitall

The Hondo Anvil Herald is very glad to announce that it has secured the services of Miss Josabell Knowitall to assist in furnishing this paper with an account of the doings of our social set. Miss Knowitall comes to the Hondo Anvil Herald highly recommended and we are certain that her feature will become one of the most popular of this paper.

Miss Josabell is an older sister of Miss Amilia Knowitall, who won national fame last year as a correspondent for The Times, Brackenridge High School weekly publication. Miss Josabell is also a personal friend of Mr. Kooter MacGrail, who at times contributes to this paper and it was largely due to his influence that Miss Knowitall accepts her present position.

Miss Knowitall, we welcome you to our midst and wish you a happy, successful and profitable stay.

Beauty Magic in Your Hands

By DORIS HALE
DuBarry Beauty Consultant

If we on this side of the ocean could become more hand conscious some of our personal beauty problems would be solved. While in France, I was impressed with the knowledge and skill most women possess in the use of their hands.

We may as well realize that they are jointly responsible for skin loveliness, along with preparations of unquestioned quality.

Of course, we need just the right things to work with! You who are home-makers know that you can't cook if you don't have flour, and eggs, butter and baking powder. So, in caring for your skin, you can't expect to keep it healthy and well-nourished without using just the right applications.

However, in any really fine preparations there is no secret. It is all there in the jar ready for use. The secret—if you still insist on one—is simply to use these scientific aids as they were intended to be used. Now I want to talk to you a little about cleansing the skin.

For simple cleansing I'd suggest three things: a cleansing cream, a lotion that tones and freshens—and, of course, cleansing tissues. Also, and this is most important, you will want the free and full use of both your hands! It's my theory that only by using both hands can you give every single part of your face and neck the kind of treatment it needs.

Now, with your finger tips spread with the fragrant cleansing cream, smooth it up—up—from the base of the neck, all over your face. I like a cream, first of all, that liquefies quickly under contact. It should not require hard rubbing and kneading. Just smooth it on. A good cream penetrates and lifts the dust and grime right out.

Now—again using both hands—take two pieces of cotton and dip each into a freshening lotion, using the middle fingers of each hand. Begin again at the base of the neck and smooth up and up gently. With the excess cream dissolved, and every pore encouraged to breathe again, your skin will feel deliciously clean and cool.

Olan Sorrells, Misses Marie Head and Unity Carleton of San Antonio were guests of L. F. Rucker and family Sunday evening.

SQUILL KILL

Rats Cost Millions Annually

You can rid your premises of this costly pest without danger to your poultry or domestic animals by using Squill Kill, a Red Squill preparation. Red Squill is recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in farm bulletin No. 1533, as being taken readily by rats and relatively harmless to human beings and domestic animals.

Rats cost the American people $200,000,000 annually. They distribute the virus of plague, of hydrophobia, of trichinosis, of equine influenza. When you can be rid of these pests by using Squill Kill at a cost of 50 cents, can you afford to have them?

Squill Kill carries a positive guarantee. If used according to instructions, your money will be refunded if Squill Kill does not kill rats and mice.

A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY.

Amos R. Wells

A LIFE FOR A DOLL.

A few days ago a woman in Massachusetts, aged sixty-seven, lost her life for a doll. It was a celluloid doll which fell on a lighted gas stove and immediately burst into flames. The woman tried to save it, her clothes caught fire from the doll, and she was burned to death.

A foolish exchange, you say, a life for a doll, and yet exchanges far more foolish are being made every day—not our short earthly life but eternal life, and not for a toy dear to some dear little child, but for poisons and ulcers and froth and fool's gold!

What trifles we try to snatch from the devil's fires! With what profitless flames we scorch ourselves! Into what furanous of folly we hurl ourselves! When do we ever scrutinize Satan's bargains, to see how worthless they are? Something for nothing? We are forever giving everything for less than nothing, or snake's fangs, for the quicksands of death!

Daniels Praised Hoover

"Herbert Hoover," said Secretary Josephus Daniels in 1920, "accomplished a monumental work in Europe and in this country. It was my very great privilege to be intimately associated with him during the war and since the armistice. He is a man of the most commanding abilities."

We guarantee reconditioned MODEL T FORDS

USUALLY, when a person buys a new Ford from us, he has by no means exhausted the transportation in his old car. We have several bargains in unused mileage in our showroom right now, awaiting second owners. Naturally, the prices are so low that you could easily afford to have one—possibly for that second car which will solve your family's transportation problem.

Model T Fords are thoroughly reconditioned and guaranteed. We also have other makes of cars for second owners—priced according to the unused service in them.

Regarding our used-car prices, remember this: There is no "padding" to care for excessive trade-in allowances, for the price of the new Ford is so low—so close to the cost of production and selling—that there is no leeway for unreasonable trade-in concessions. When you buy a used car from us you pay just what it is worth, and no more. We would hardly care to risk our reputation and good-will by following any other policy.

For Representative 77th District.

We are authorized to announce HON. A. P. JOHNSON as a candidate for re-election to the office of Representative of the 77th Representative District, subject to the Democratic Primaries.

For Tax Assessor. Yielding to the solicitations of my many friends, I have decided to become a candidate for the office of Tax Assessor of Medina County, and now hereby respectfully announce for said office, subject to the next November general election.

It will be my earnest endeavor to meet every voter before the election, but in case I should not be able to do so, I adopt this opportunity to say that your support and vote will be greatly appreciated by me. I promise, if elected, to render impartial, courteous and efficient service to all.

Sincerely yours,

For Commissioner Precinct No. 1. To My Friends and All Voters of Commissioner's Precinct No. 1,

I am again announcing myself as a candidate for the office of Commissioner of Precinct No. 1, believing it is time a change should be made in that official position of the County.

It is my purpose, in making the race for Commissioner, to try and not only try, but improve our public roads of my precinct, without favor or hope of reward, and to economically manage as far as I can the finances of the County, provided the voters and tax payers will so honor me with their support.

Hence I am asking all voters in Precinct No. 1 who have confidence in my integrity and ability to fill the office, for their support at the next election in November, 1930.

Trusting I will be your next Commissioner,

I am, most respectfully,

Prove Your Plan

When old Columbus called on the queen, He said, Isabella, you never have seen A man who could prove the world is flat. And the queen saw the point he was getting at, So the ships and money for him she found, And old Columbus proved the world was round. The world would move in the same old groove Were not for those who things could prove. THE HONDO STATE BANK has regard for the man Who, like Columbus, can prove his plan.

Came Out of War Clean

"Herbert Hoover came out of the war clean," declared Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, in the Senate in 1919. "He came out having rendered a great service to the American people. He came out at the head of a great army of volunteer citizens—men, women and children—who had, at his request, saved and skimped, and had thus helped him to conserve the food that was necessary to win the war."

YANCEY NEWS.

We received the sad message last day that Mrs. Nannie Ward had passed away at San Antonio. Mrs. Ward received some serious burns about ten weeks ago, and was taken to the hospital for treatment, and she was doing nicely but her constitution became weakened and her heart became to be weakened from the shock of her nervous system, and all that medical skill and careful nursing did for her was of no avail. Her remains were laid to rest in Yancey Cemetery amid a large course of sorrowing relatives and friends. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved. Five sons, John and Monroe of Brownsville and of Houston were present at the funeral, besides grandchildren and nieces and nephews from different places.

Misses Lizzie Oefinger, Loreet and Florence Bohmfalk of San Antonio were here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fey Burgin, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Oefinger and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Oefinger all from San Antonio attended the funeral here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wright and Mr. Joe Wiley of Dilley came over for the funeral.

Mr. and Mrs. Outlaw of Moore were here Saturday.

Mr. Ernest Youngblood of Pearsall was here Saturday; also Mr. and Mrs. Don Sanders.

Little Tommie Duncan was quite ill Friday and Saturday with fever. Charles Burgin, Tom Jones and N. Wilson are off to Dallas on business.

Mrs. Tom Duncan and Mrs. Marberry spent the week-end with sister, Mrs. Allen Thompson, in Antonio.

Good many of our school patrons pupils of our school attended county meet at Hondo Friday. The program for Saturday was postponed until next Saturday on account of the muddy condition of Fair grounds.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Saathoff of Hondo visited the family of Mr. John Bohmfalk last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Burgin went to San Antonio Friday on business and were there.

Mrs. T. H. Roensch and sister, Thigpen, of California, visited here at Lytle Friday and Saturday.

Miss Annie Paul Null of Muldoon was here Sunday on an extended visit to her homefolks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Rogers and Mr. Mrs. Bailey Rogers of Hondo were here for the funeral of Mrs. Mary.

Mrs. Marvin Beal, Miss Fannie Beal, Mrs. L. E. Heath, Mrs. Ray Bailey and Mrs. Jack Fussell were at Yancey Saturday.

Geo. Muennink and daughter, Phil Shoop, of Hondo came to the funeral Saturday. Telegraph Operator and Deputy Sheriff Dawson were down from Hondo to shake hands with friends Saturday.

The home of Mrs. H. N. Burgin was burglarized last week Thursday at three o'clock in the afternoon. A burglar entered the home by breaking one of the large window panes and took some change out of the dresser drawer and also some money that was concealed in another part of the house.

"MORE SCOUTS AND BETTER SCOUTS."

This is a slogan being adopted by Scout Leaders over Southwest Texas. Scouts, that are advancing in the program, receive the greater benefits from Scouting. For this advancement to be official, the candidate should be presented before a Scout Court of Honor.

Recently these courts have been held in Carrizo Springs and Uvalde, in Rock Springs, Monday night of this week and Crystal City, Tuesday night, a fine bunch of Scouts in all of these places having made application for advancement. Court of Honor dates are set for Hondo April the 12th; Leakey, April the 18th; Del Rio, April the 22nd; Carrizo Springs, May the 5th; Eagle Pass, May the 5th; with a possible intervening date for Brackettville. We welcome Troop No. 32 of Uvalde with 18 Scouts.

Scouting is a bit new to Mexican boys, but they are working at the job. Troop No. 6 of Uvalde has rechartered with 32 Scouts, with still other boys wanting to be Scouts. Knippa Troop No. 17 is rechartering as a Home Patrol. Batesville No. 18 and LaPryor No. 13 have recently rechartered their troop.

Leakey No. 9, under the leadership of Supt. D. E. Sawyers, has started out for another year and means business. Carrizo Springs Troop No. 11 with Scoutmaster Ward Johnson saying, "Come on, Scouts," is doing some fine work. They will do their civic good turn during the Strawberry Festival as a service unit in helping to make that a real Winter Garden occasion on April the 5th.

Eagle Pass No. 7 is taking on new life under the leadership of Scoutmaster Braithwaite and two assistants. He is asking for two more assistants to help handle the crowds, as a number of old Scouts are coming back into the fold. They are equipping their gym and making Scouting and physical development go hand in hand.

Troop No. 12 of Vance is having monthly hikes, and they are doing their civic good turn by cleaning up the cemetery, church yard and town park. Mr. and Mrs. Lum Thompson have given the Scout troop a fine pecan tree near the river, and they have built a wall of rock on the bank of the river to protect the roots. They dedicated the tree to Scouting Monday of this week. This troop expects to delve into the ancient past by excavating in a mound near Montel, that is known to be an old Spanish Mission, April the 12th.

Come on, Fellows, let's get everybody to Scouting. Be sure that you know your First Aid. Be Prepared! Scout Headquarters.

Fast Days Are Feast Days with these Lenten Dishes

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,

JUST a little extra thought at this Lenten season will enable you to serve a succession of interesting meals that the entire family will welcome.

Since most meats are highly flavorful, it is important to remember that foods which take their place must be attractively seasoned as well as substantial.

Baked beans, eggs, and a variety of vegetables offer a basis for almost innumerable dishes that will make the family forget the ordinary delights of a meat course.

Below are a number of recipes that should prove especially welcome at this season:

New England Roast

1 medium can Oven Baked Kidney Beans; 1 cup soft crumbs; 1 cup grated cheese; 1 medium size onion, chopped fine; 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce; 1/2 teaspoon salt; 1 egg.

Mash beans or put through food chopper, and mix with other ingredients. Bake in a greased baking dish at moderate oven until firm and nicely brown. Serve with tomato sauce made as follows:

1 tablespoon butter; 1/2 cup flour; 1/2 cup milk; 1/2 cup tomato ketchup. Melt butter and add flour and milk slowly. Cook until thickened, and add ketchup slowly.

Baked Beans in Green Pepper Cases—Wash green peppers, cut in half lengthwise and remove the seeds. Fill with Oven Baked Beans, and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Place in a deep baking dish, add 1/2 cup water, and bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender.

Escalloped Eggs and Olives—Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, add 4 tablespoons flour, and stir until well blended. Add

1 1/2 cups milk and stir until thick. Season with salt, pepper and 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce. Add 4 hard cooked eggs cut in slices, and 1/2 cup sliced Spanish Olives. Pour into buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs, and brown in hot oven.

Mock Chicken a la King—In a skillet melt 3 tablespoons butter and brown slightly 1 can mushrooms or 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms. Add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until well blended. Then add 2 cups rich milk, and cook until thickened. Season with salt, pepper, and 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce. Add 3 hard cooked sliced eggs, 1 cup cooked celery, 1/2 cup sliced, stuffed Spanish Olives and 1/4 cup grated American cheese. Heat thoroughly and serve in patty shells or on buttered toast. Garnish with slices of Stuffed Spanish Olives.

Kidney Bean Salad

2 cups Oven Baked Kidney Beans; 2 tablespoons India Relish; 1 cup celery, cut in pieces; 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Put Oven Baked Kidney Beans in a strainer and pour boiling water over them. Cool and mix with celery, India Relish, and salt. Mix well with French dressing, and let stand in ice box until chilled. Arrange in nests of lettuce leaves, and serve with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing.

Peanut Butter Cutlets

1 cup Peanut Butter; 1 cup hot milk; 1/2 teaspoon salt; Pepper; Slices of bread. Mix Peanut Butter with hot milk and seasoning, blending them together thoroughly. Dip slices of bread in the Peanut Butter mixture and fry in a skillet with 2 tablespoons hot fat. Garnish with Pickles and Olives. This dish offers both adequate protein and iron and therefore is an especially good meat substitute.

ONIONS ARE RICH SOURCE OF ESSENTIAL VITAMINE C

By CAROLINE B. KING
Culinary Expert and Lecturer on Domestic Sciences

RECENT dietetic research has proved beyond question that our foods must furnish us with sufficient quantities of Vitamine C

if we are to enjoy a full measure of vigor and good health. When children are irritable, if they show a lack of stamina, or if their growth is retarded, one or all of these unfortunate conditions may be due to nothing more than lack of this precious vitamine. Children suffering from all of these symptoms of malnutrition have been cured by supplying them with foods in which the vitamine is contained in large proportions.

Onions are rich sources of Vitamine C, especially when eaten raw. When cooked they retain a considerable proportion of their Vitamine C content, differing in this respect from many other vegetables in which the vitamine is less stable, and, therefore, is lost in cooking. Onions are inexpensive, and can be prepared in so many different ways that there is no reason why you and your family should not consistently profit by their dietetic value, without ever complaining of the monotony of their appearance on the table. A small amount of sugar added while cooking will help to bring out their delicate flavor.

Onions Baked in Tomato Sauce provide a dish in which there is a delicious blend of the flavors of the two vegetables. Strain a quart can of tomatoes and cook for fifteen minutes with four tablespoons of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of flour, and one-quarter teaspoon pepper. Then add two tablespoons of butter. Cut six or eight onions into halves and put them in a baking dish. Pour the tomato sauce over the onions and bake about one hour in a moderate oven.

Glazed Onions—Peel medium-size, silver-skin onions and prick them through the centers to prevent breaking while cooking. Place in boiling salted water to which a tablespoon of sugar to a quart of water has been added. Simmer until tender and drain. For a quart of onions, melt two tablespoons of butter in a pan, add two tablespoons of granulated sugar, and cook to the bubbling stage. Then add the onions and stir until they are well glazed.

Baked Apples and Onions—Slice three medium-size apples and six medium-size onions into a greased casserole in alternate layers. Season each layer with salt, pepper, sugar and butter, using a half cup of sugar and two tablespoons of butter for the dish. Add a half cup of water and bake in a moderate oven about three-quarters of an hour.

Onions in Cream—Peel the onions and cook until tender in boiling salted water to which has been added a tablespoon of sugar to a quart. Drain and serve with cream sauce. For the sauce, cook one tablespoon of butter and one tablespoon of flour together for a few minutes. Then add a cup and a half of milk and continue cooking until the mixture has thickened. Season with one-half teaspoon of salt, one-quarter teaspoon of paprika and a teaspoon of butter. Pour over the onions and serve.
